DTD – 387 words, and the captive considers her plight

written by Holly
July 15, 2009
By Holly Lisle

A light night. I haven’t been getting enough sleep, and today I’m really feeling it.

So I ran with Aleksa for a bit, as—alone and for the moment safe—she’s forced to consider what’s coming after her and the possibility that her life will never be normal again.

I’ll do more in that vein tomorrow. She surprised me with her response to her plight; I’m looking forward to discovering what she does next.

So. How’s it going for you?

Contents © Holly Lisle. https://hollylisle.com All Rights Reserved