I GOT MY RESOLUTION!

All caps… Yes. I'm shouting.

You know I wanted to come up with some magnificent challenge for myself to pledge as my New Year's Resolution, to have going in some beginning fashion before I turn 50 in October of next year.

And I was standing in the shower just minutes ago, and thinking about TalysMana and Becky's NOW-limited-to-50-EVER TalysMana Viewer, and about Rebel Tales and what I want to accomplish with that, and about all my novels, and about my How To Write A Novel And Build A Career Course, and about the novel revision course, and about FM, which I started and then ran for years, and about the Clinics, and the other smaller projects I've done.

And about the 33 Mistakes Books, and why I produced those.

And my thoughts turned to themes. The theme at the heart of TalysMana. The theme of my life. How everything I've done has been related, how it's all been pointing toward something.

There was this 'click' in the back of my mind. A moment of clarity. An understanding of what comes next, and why it matters, and how to do it.

This is the biggest thing I've ever imagined, the biggest dream I've ever had.

I'll have an interesting post for you on New Year's Day.

Watch this space.
