

1270 words – and delicious evil

By Holly Lisle

Baanraak has found in his enemy an unexpected equal. Suddenly, for the first time in thousands of years, something has his attention, and he's elated. He's getting ready to plan his hunt, knowing that when he does it, he's going to have to take precautions he's never needed before – he's going to have to pretend that he's hunting himself, and he's going to have to acknowledge that his enemy might have a few tricks that he didn't know of and couldn't plan for.
