

On the new site

We thought we were going to be ready to go live with HollysWritingClasses.com December 1st. Get all the members in, have the first couple of classes done and in place with the rest in progress.

Write Your Own Sky

We've hit a completely unexpected problem—well, the Group B beta testers have hit it, actually—and while making our desired December 1st date for taking the site live may still be possible, right now we're probably going to slow down and try for the middle of the month or early January.

Requesting 5 HTRYN Grad volunteers to test inside HollysWritingClasses.com

By Holly Lisle

Rough tests on the first section of HollysWritingClasses.com are done.

I'm now asking for 5 students with current accounts (you've been using your account within the past month or two) who are graduates of HTRYN and who would be willing to go in over the weekend and use the first part of the software we've built.

This is still pretty rough. Rough enough that you'll receive a "Wave 1 Tester" pip for your heroic efforts in bughunting this part of the software.

First five volunteers will receive invitations either late tomorrow or Saturday. Make sure I have good contact info for you when you post here.

Added Later

I have my five testers. If we end up making significant changes as a result of this test, I'll invite the next folks who volunteered, in order of volunteering, and you'll get special tester pips, too.

Thank you to everyone who's volunteered.

You guys are wonderful. ☐
