

And Onward Yet

By Holly Lisle

At 74,204 words, and anxious to get through LGD by Thursday, when I have promised to take off for Christmas, because I won't be looking at the manuscript again until about the twenty-eighth. At that point, I would like to be able to simply print it off and go through line by line doing a more-or-less leisurely edit before I e-mail it to my agent on the 2nd.

What I would LIKE to avoid is pulling any all-nighters, because I do not handle them well. Never have. I'm purely a morning person.

Today, then, a lot more words. Will update for progress.
