

Apologies in Advance

There is a new tip jar on the site. I will remove it soon – usually I simply hope that folks who like the site will try one of my books. Rocks, hard places, and badly-times surprises being what they are, immediacy won out over long-term planning for the very near future, and if you like the place enough to drop a buck or two in the kitty, I would really appreciate it. Things should stabilize in the next three months, and then, if I've done my math right, actually start to improve. My plan is to remove the tip jar on Dec. 31st, and never put it back again.

In the meantime, I apologize. I don't mind tip jars elsewhere, but I never wanted one here.
