

Back at Work

By Holly Lisle

So the migraine started Friday afternoon. Had it all day Saturday, and most of Sunday. It's still lingering behind my eyes right now, warning. But I took off the weekend, spent a lot of time sleeping, and Matt and I bounced ideas off of each other on my second draft of the proposal synopsis. Back at work this morning (late – didn't sleep for shit last night, so I slept in a bit), and ready to start on the next rewrite. The story is coming together for me.

All the rewriting before I send it in is to, with luck, eliminate all the rewriting after I send it in.
