Both Create A Character Clinic and Hunting the Corrigan's Blood are now available in print versions at the OneMoreWord Bookstore on Lulu.com.

The second version of CCC landed on my doorstep Saturday afternoon, and it came out just right. I was overjoyed that it turned out so well…and incredibly relieved that it turned out at all. Getting this book into print has been a real challenge.

On a personal note, I haven't felt like myself since late last year (something you may have noticed from the tenor of this weblog). While I wrote most of this off to a whole lot of years of overwork and (since about December) the depression that sometimes affects me, I discovered not too long ago that the horrible headaches and the constant exhaustion are primarily being caused by high blood pressure. I've reverted to a vegan diet, and the blood pressure has already started to come down. I still don't feel like myself. But I am starting to feel better.

Oh. And the e-book store is down for maintenance. If you're hoping to buy any of the cool books we have up on the site, please keep checking.
