Got about a thousand more words on Hawkspar, though I'm still stalled on the same damned scene that has had me stymied for ... well, since the last time I made good progress on this. I have to basically work three scenes into one, completely alter the timeline of the thing, switch the POV in half of it, and I'm not sure what to cut and what to keep, and I'm having problems with redundancies.

Anyway. Done for the day.

Matt saw another water moccasin in our back yard today. He was less than thrilled. I saw one in the front yard a week or so ago.

I'm not too damned thrilled either.
