

Done, But On the Ground

By Holly Lisle

It wasn't a day for wings. I got my three thousand words plus change, but not so quickly that I could leap into the next three thousand and put them away as well.

I like what I got. Finished with 58,668 words. And I'm awfully close to the end of the book – close enough that I suspect I'm going to have to add more conflict into the middle to make it the length it needs to be.

But not today.
