

Dreaming in HTML

By Holly Lisle

The sinus headache has evolved into a miserable cold. Feh.

And last night I dreamed in HTML. I was reading the code and altering it to shape events. Very strange; I'd think it meant I was spending too much time working on the site, but I actually haven't BEEN working on the site.

Anyway, got three thousand yesterday rather than four, and I have to knock off early today to go get Mark from the bus station, so I'm not going to push for four today.

Finishing number last night was 150,659 words. Goal today is 153,659 words.
