

Going to Be Offline for A While

By Holly Lisle

Unplugged-from-the-internet offline. This revision is rough, I'm having a hard time maintaining focus. So I'm going to do the monastic thing, lock myself away from the world and all its temptations, and meditate myself into a state where I can completely submerge in the story. I won't be reading or listening to anything that might break my state. No political stuff, no ranty stuff, no news. XM weather, maybe. (Gotta mow the yard today.) I'll check e-mails from the non-work computer every evening.

How long will I be gone?

I don't know. As long as it takes to develop flow in this revision. Could be a couple of days, could be until I'm done. I won't know until I get there.
