

Good progress, good conflict... and a whiff of destruction on the wind

By Holly Lisle

Have been working since 7AM – and today flew.

Book 4 took a dangerous turn this morning, as something I'd sort of tripped over in an earlier book took on a life of its own, and unfolded in front of me in a way I had never even imagined.

There is a schism amongst my main character's most important allies – discovered today while I was writing.

And while it's great for the plot, and while I knew something sort of like this had to blow up eventually, when it did, it did so in a way I'd never even imagined.

Blew me away.

So 1268 words (just over the 1250 planned), and 30,312 on the novel, so just over one third of what I have planned on Novel Four...

And I love this.

Get Holly's Free Fiction Sampler, plus Weekly Fiction Updates

Today's words funded by my Ko-Fi supporters.

All supporters are thanked by name (withheld by request) in each book's acknowledgements.

FICTION WRITERS! Sign up for Holly's Thursday Writing Tips

Contents © Holly Lisle. <https://hollylisle.com> All Rights Reserved