Finished with 19,887 words yesterday, to today's goal is 22,887 words. When I hit that, I'll be one third of the way done with the book, plus change.

I'm heading into the central conflict of the story now, right on schedule. The preliminary conflicts foreshadowed what was to come, I killed off one really sweet character yesterday to create the twist that complicates the main character's life even further, and now things get dicey, and should get progressively hairier and scarier for my MC until the I scream down into the finale like a pack of Harriers.

Moving along, then.
