

I'd Quit If I Could

By Holly Lisle

More on the RWA Censorship issue. If I were a member, I'd be quitting today. But since I didn't join in the first place because I could see how they treated those they deem "second-class" members, I can't quit. I can, however, pass on to you such pertinent information as comes my way, and hope if you have a link to the organization, you'll make your thoughts on censorship known. This is a big issue; it's appalling for a writers' organization to treat its members this way.
