

Inspiration and Community

By Holly Lisle

Responding to a post a couple of days ago, I suddenly got an inkling of what a varied lot of talents the members of the site's writers' community harbored. Testing my theory, I put out a request for community members to describe their hobbies. The response has been even better – more interesting and more varied – than I had expected. If you'd like to add your hobbies, interests, and talents to this list, I'd love to see them. And I'm putting together something pretty neat (at least I think it's pretty neat) that will begin next month.
