

Neat Survey

Here's a well-put-together survey on writers' blogs, designed to be taken by both readers and writers.

It addresses the furor a couple weeks back about whether writers should blog; if they should then should they be honest; if they are honest, will readers turn away from their books in revulsion ... and so on. Drop in, give your two cents worth. It's a short, totally anonymous survey, and if enough people take it, the results should be fascinating.
