

Never give a sick kid red Gatorade

By Holly Lisle

'Nuff said.

I'm not the only one sick. But I keep reminding myself that tomorrow, I get to sleep in.

I have more heavy-duty typing today than yesterday. The second half of Ruby Key is the section that has most of the new material, though I typed in about 11,000 new words yesterday. You won't notice the extra until the WIP meter starts overflowing on the top bar. Since I'm typing in new material right now, that may take a while.

Cannot believe how tired I am. But, as Robin reminded me, yes, I have to kill myself on this, (Her exact words—Go kill yourself on this.) but it's for a good cause.

Interesting woman, is Robin.
