

Not too impressed with Survey Gizmo

With the success story question below, I was also doing a free test of Survey Gizmo before paying to use it—so that we wouldn't have the problem we had with vote cheating the next time I needed to ask your input on an upcoming course. (It also does polls, but surveys are a better indicator of how well something works.)

I've had 443 starts, and 3 completions. So I'm guessing it doesn't work too well.

Could you tell me what problems you had with it, what system you're using, and where it broke? I need to find something that will work, and this was cool because it would go right into my weblog rather than having to be on separate pages. Also, it's comparatively inexpensive. But if it doesn't work, it automatically becomes expensive.
