Had a rough time getting anything done on Talyn yesterday and an even worse time today, due to outside demands on my time, and a bit of trouble now that I'm well into the novel's middle and feeling the pinch.

I'll delve into the worldbuilding and the outline later today and see if I can find the right tack to take. Meanwhile, amidst the fragmentation and noise of the five-year-old's business, I did manage to get the Broegga Writers' General Public License done and posted. I wish I could do creative work in the middle of chaos instead of just non-creative work.
