

Thinking sometimes counts ... I hope

By Holly Lisle

I didn't do pages on the proposal last night. I did do some hard thinking about it – about epic scope within the covers of a single book, and how to attain that. And Matt and I discussed it today, too. I'm going to give it another day or two to perk, though he gave me some amazing stuff to think about. In the meantime, however, I have 2500 words on TWOH to do, and today Molly is going to confront the people who hid the truth from her, and discover that if she fights, she will not fight alone.

Can you say “Calm before the storm?”
