

Today, Pretty Busy

By Holly Lisle

Podcast is done and episode two is now up. Heard from Claire, and we're negotiating her offer now. Had a fantastic opportunity open up for me, so I'm working my ass off on the proposal for that (more about it when I can say something.)

And my e-mail filter got its hands slapped and has been sent back into training mode; it's been letting junk mail through and tossing real mail, and I suspect that I haven't caught all the good stuff that it tossed. So as of today, a couple of years of spam filter happiness went out the door, and I'll be having to wade through every piece of mail that hits the inbox for the next week or three, while the spam filter learns what it's supposed to keep, and what it's supposed to toss.

Damned computer.
