

Today, Rewrite the Outline

By Holly Lisle

It's 4000-ish words long, and will be about the same when I'm done with it. Has to be completely rewritten. That's the first goal for today. Following that, More Fun With Taxes. And if you're wondering at the time it takes me prep stuff to send to my accountant, it's because I. Save. Everything. And going through a year's worth of grocery store receipts looking for books and magazines and pens and notebooks purchased (plus every item on every receipt in the rest of the trash bag full of receipts) is no picnic. Proponent of a flat tax, or of no income tax at all and a switch to straight sales tax? That would be me.
